

THE FINAL MEETING.

Grand Republican Rally
at the Opera House.A Cheering Multitude Greeted George W. Cheyney.Great Enthusiasm Manifested for the Cause of Honesty and Good Government.

Patton's opera house was again packed last night from top to bottom with the largest and most enthusiastic audience of the campaign, to hear the Republican speakers once more, before the election today.

There were many ladies present, and several of them gave evidence of their approval and admiration of the able speeches made by showering bouquets of beautiful flowers at the feet of the orators.

Captain Hagcock appropriately introduced as the first speaker of the evening the Hon. George W. Cheyney, Republican nominee for delegate to Congress, who was received with great applause. Mr. Cheyney fully explained his position on the issues of the day, and laid bare the double dealing of "Marion" on the land grant question.

Two years ago he had heard Smith on the political stand assert in the most positive terms that he would never, so far as he should be able to prevent it, permit a bill to be passed by the Congress of the United States which did not recognize the rights of the settlers upon the public lands, and the speaker, agreeing with him upon that question, had voted for him. But on Thursday of last week he read to a Tucson audience the bill he now held in his hand, and which emanated from Smith, and the words "settlers" was not in it, or any provision to protect them in their improvements. Smith had introduced that bill and never advised or made his constituents aware of its provisions or that he had introduced such a bill, and it was not publicly known until the speaker had read it in Tucson on last Thursday.

The speaker retired under an outburst of applause that showed that the audience was thoroughly in sympathy with him.

Webster Street, Republican candidate for District Attorney, was the next speaker, and was received with cheers and applause. He proceeded to expose the fallacy of Frank Cox's arguments on the question of taxing the possessory claims on the public lands, and of his advising the Board of Supervisors to make such levy and sales for delinquencies under it, and quoted, California reports, the several statutes of Arizona and the Supreme Court decisions in support of his position.

The speaker also made plain the illegality of the charges of $1034.00 by Neri Osborne, the present County Recorder, for the recording of the 547 such orders to land, which have not been proved up on and $328.00 for the filing of same.

At the conclusion of Mr. Street's speech flowers were thrown upon the stage and neatly received and the compliment acknowledged by the speaker.

The chairman introduced Ed S. Gill, Republican nominee for the Territorial Assembly. Mr. Gill's reception was an oration of cheers and applause.

After quiet was restored, Mr. Gill spoke substantially as follows: Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen: If ever there was a time when I was proud that I was a Republican, it is certainly tonight. (Cheers and applause.) Standing on the corner of Washington and Montgomery streets about an hour ago, or a little more, the band went marching past, and behind it came a little motley throng, some of the men yelling, and shouting, "Hah for the Democrats," and I said to a young man by the side of me: "My God, what has any young Democrat to be proud of in his party?" There is something for a young man to be proud of in belonging to the Republican party. (Cheers and applause.) It has stood from its inception as the party of progress, the party of advancement, in all this country's history.

It stands before you as the party that has always taken for its emblem, "Old Glory," which hangs here before us—the American flag—and it stands before you as the party which comes before the people with a platform pledging itself for protection to American industries. (Great cheers and applause.) It stands before you as the party under which the population of this country has increased in thirty years from 30,000,000 to 63,000,000 of inhabitants! It stands before you as the party under whose government in thirty years the wealth of this nation has increased four fold.

And if Arizona wants to advance to that proud position in the sisterhood of states, where her star can be placed in the blue field, she must come into the Republican fold and send to Congress my friend and your friend, the Hon. George W. Cheyney. (Cheers.) She must elect as members of her next Legislature, men who stand in sympathy and in good fellowship with the Republican party. (Applause and cries of "good.") And by the way, I want to say to you that I feel to-night like a Democrat expressed it to-day: He wanted to see men elected to-morrow to office that he could introduce into his family, to his wife and to his daughters.

We have shown you in the arguments which we have presented from this platform, and from other platforms throughout the campaign which closes to-night, that the administration of this territory under Governor Zuliak was notoriously rotten and corrupt. (Cheers and applause.) We have shown you that the administration of the affairs of this county under the present administration have been, to say the least, lax and extravagant. We have shown you that in place of an expenditure of $88,000 for conducting the affairs of the county in the two years of 1887 and 1888, there has been expended for the year 1889 and the three-fourths of a year just passed, $124,000, a difference of over $36,000. And now we appeal to you to so cast your votes upon tomorrow that there may be a change in the administration of the affairs of this county and that they may be conducted honestly and economically. (Great applause.)

Republican though I am, and proud of the principles of the party, I do not appeal to you simply upon the ground of being a Republican, but I appeal to you as men, and men who believe in honesty in government, and believe in purity in office; who believe that virtue should never be made a by-word; who believe in the sacredness of the home circle, and we ask you as such citizens to cast your ballots for men whom we present for your suffrages. (Great applause.)

Mr. Gill touched upon the other various issues and was warmly applauded at each of his convincing points. As he closed his oration, a shower of bouquets were thrown upon the stage from various parts of the house, and the speaker gathering them up in his arms, bowed his acknowledgments, and took his seat to give way to the other speakers.

At this point a voice from the audience said: "Ladies and gentlemen: There is a man in this audience whom I have known for twenty-five years, and have always known him to be an honest, good man, and we want to hear him. I refer to John B. Montgomery." (Cheers and applause.) But Francis A. Shaw was the next speaker, and was listened to attentively.

Renewed calls for John B. Montgomery brought that gentleman to his feet. He did not claim to be a public speaker, but promised, in the event of his election, to do his level best for the people, "and the whole people." (Cheers and cries of "You bet.")

To end with, the chairman, who had so ably introduced the several speakers preceding, next introduced a man, who, he said, was not a candidate for any office in Maricopa county or the Territory of Arizona; and that was himself. He called upon the voters to look well to their ballots on election day, and he felt assured that all Republicans would stand by their men, and bring about the much needed change in the administration of the affairs of this county and Territory. In concluding, he called upon the audience to give three cheers for the ticket. The entire audience arose and gave three deafening cheers and three tigers, when the meeting adjourned and the people went to their homes well pleased with the last Republican meeting before the election.
